Additional Information and Comments

We would strongly recommend that this mod be passed to a development group as we are aware of additional changes to the NExA table that are being discussed elsewhere and could potentially be implemented at the same time (e.g. a new housing type category for “gas for cooking only”). It is also unclear at this stage whether or not the xoserve calculations took account of the fact that iGTs developments tend to be new housing which complies with more modern building regs regarding energy efficiency. This may also need to be factored into the review of NExA AQs.
